

activyl[®] TICKPLUS

Switch on. Beat fleas and ticks.

Why does the practice recommend Activyl Tick Plus now?

New products are developed all the time and we like to make sure we are offering you what we believe to be the best product available for you and your pet. Activyl Tick Plus is an excellent product, as it is more effective than products like Frontline against fleas and repels ticks, which few other products do. As well as treating adult fleas, it also kills the eggs and larvae in your dog's surroundings – i.e. your house! – which is essential to control fleas properly. In fact, 95% of a flea problem is in the environment and the adult fleas you see on your pet are only the tip of the iceberg.

What is different about Activyl Tick Plus?

Activyl Tick Plus contains two ingredients. To treat the fleas, it contains 'indoxacarb'. This is a new class of flea treatment and is the first flea control product in the world to work by 'bioactivation'. This means it only becomes a highly active insecticide once inside the flea, so is really selective for fleas. Activyl Tick Plus also contains permethrin and is one of the few tick products available to repel ticks, rather than just killing them once they have started feeding on your dog. This is really important as tick bites can cause quite nasty skin damage and also potentially spread diseases. Activyl Tick Plus repels up to 98% of ticks, but also kills up to 100% of the few which aren't repelled, so your pet is doubly protected.

Is Activyl Tick Plus suitable for all my pets?

No, Activyl Tick Plus is only for dogs. For cats, there is Activyl. You must never use Activyl Tick Plus on a cat.

How is it used?

Activyl Tick Plus is really easy to apply – the pipette can be opened with one hand, leaving the other free to hold your dog. Part the fur, and apply to the skin in several small spots along your pets back. There are diagrams of this in the packaging for you. For the best protection from fleas and ticks, Activyl Tick Plus should be used every 4 weeks.
